Benefits of the AGIC membership – Infrastructure Organisations

There are numerous benefits and opportunities from participating in AGIC's development and supporting the ultimate use of the AGIC Rating Scheme. Some of the key advantages of the AGIC Membership are summarised below:

- Membership demonstrates an organisation's commitment to driving sustainable outcomes that add value to an organisation, its peers, shareholders, clients, supply chain and employees.
- Members can make use of numerous promotional opportunities via the AGIC website, publicity materials, newsletters, conferences and special events.
- Members may make significant cost savings through the use of AGIC's sustainability criteria which have been developed from extensive research, collaboration with a wide cross-section of national private and government organisations and rigorously tested / peer reviewed.
- Membership provides opportunities to assist in the development of the AGIC Rating Scheme and ensure that individual industry's needs and expectations are met.
- Members benefit from collective advocacy on sustainability issues.
- Members will receive discounts on project assessments, training courses, technical manuals and AGIC sponsored events.
- Membership will be one of the main factors considered in the selection of pilot project trials.
- Members can nominate suitably qualified employees to be trained as AGIC Verifiers.
- Foundation Members receive additional benefits (Refer to AGIC Fact Sheet No 3).
